

In the interest of fairness and justice, please refrain from eliminating internet neutrality leaving the citizens of the United States at the mercy of their internet providers. In my city there are only two internet providers. They hold a monopoly therefore there is no freedom of choice or competition. We are at the mercy of their prices, speeds and whims. My greatest fear is that by eliminating internet neutrality, the FCC will be eliminating free speech for which the internet has pioneered a new era of support of many causes that has been long ignored by mainstream media. Individuals may no longer be able to access blogs and boards at the same rate of speed as those who are able to pay for additional bandwidth. Please consider the little people in your decision. Please allow internet neutrality to remain as it is.
